

Olive Powell

Olive Powell is a chartered geographer (GIS) and fellow of the Royal Geographical Society with IBG with more than 20 years' experience in the use of geospatial data and technology in the environment and law enforcement's sectors. Previously International Lead at the Geospatial Commission, in Cabinet Office, she is now the Head of Geography & Geospatial at the Office for National Statistics where she leads the Geospatial division, responsible for delivering the geospatial infrastructure, datasets, and spatial analytical services to the organisation to improve the provision of statistics for public good. She is passionate about diversity and geospatial and is the co-founder and Director of Women+ in Geospatial global network.